INTERVIEW

Chortler.com Talks To Salvador Litvak, Director of 'When Do We Eat?'

An extremely uncommon event occurred this past week. The so-called editor of Chortler.com actually spoke to a real live person. And it was no ordinary person at that. For, the person in question was none other than Salvador Litvak, the director of When Do We Eat? -- a comedy starring Jack Klugman, Lesley Ann Warren and Michael Lerner.

Chortler.com: In the film, a son slips his father Ecstasy during the Passover seder while other family members seduce each other. What made you decide to do a film based on my family?

Salvador Litvak: I co-wrote the film with my wife (Nina Davidovich). The story is based a lot on our own experiences during the Passover holiday. Though, I hasten to add, neither of us ever slipped our parents Ecstasy during the seder.

Chortler.com: Which brings us to my next question: With the glut of Hollywood films in recent years about children who provide their parents with Ecstasy during the Passover seder, why do a new one?

Salvador Litvak: A film like "Monsoon Wedding", although placed in an ethnic setting, tells a universal story. It is no different with this film. You don't have to be Jewish to appreciate this film.

Chortler.com: But I am Jewish. (Or at least I write like I'm Jewish). What's for dinner?

Salvador Litvak: We've got a little bit of everything: Gefilte fish, lamb, Sephardic dishes. You name it. No one is going away hungry.

Chortler.com: What was it like working with Jack Klugman? Did you have to pick up after him like Tony Randall always used to on "The Odd Couple"?

Salvador Liptak: Jack is an amazing person. We were working 12-14 hours and Jack was always a first-class professional.

Chortler.com: Besides such great comic geniuses as Tom Riddle and Marlin Fitzwater, who else has influenced your work?

Salvador Litvak: Billy Wilder and the Coen brothers.

Chortler.com: Do you mind me putting words in your mouth?

Salvador Litvak: Go ahead, but I want you to know I didn't say half the things you are writing. But I will say this: See this film. You will definitely get your money's worth.
